Employee Spotlight Karl Jurgens

What is your role at the City? How long have you been with the City and what position did you start at? I currently serve as a sergeant on the night shift. I am also a property manager and truck enforcement officer. I have served Wilmington for the almost 14 years when I started as a patrol officer. I was also assigned as a detective from 2016-2020.

If you could switch your job with anyone else within the City, whose job would you want? I'll say our city administrator, Jeannine Smith. I'm fascinated by everything that has to get done in order to keep a town operating. It's a lot of work, but like what I do now, no two days would ever be the same.

What is on your wish list for the next 5 years with the City? Continue to grow commercially as well as residentially in a positive way. This would in turn allow the PD to continue to grow and develop and bring additional police services to Wilmington. And I wouldn't be upset if we got our own Dunkin.

If you could have an unlimited supply of one thing, what would it be? Time was a good answer last month by Chief. So I'll say coffee, or vacation time. Either.

What is your favorite aspect of your job? I enjoy being involved with the command staff of the PD, and also collaborating with other community organizations.

What has been your favorite project that you worked on here at the City? Playing a role in bringing focus to truck enforcement in this community has been rewarding. I feel like we're making an impact on keeping the roadways a little safer through education and identifying violations. It's really not about the money, but truck officers issued over a quarter million dollars in fines during 2022.

Three words that best describe you? Dad. Husband. Coach.

People would be surprised if they knew what about you or what's your secret talent that no one knows about? My passion for music almost led me to pursue a career as a music teacher. While in college, I played bass guitar in a rock band and trombone in a jazz band.
